

Environmental Research & Education Foundation Celebrates 25 Years of Sustainable Solid Waste Research and Education

Raleigh, NC (April 3, 2019) – This year, the Environmental Research & Education Foundation (EREF) is celebrating 25 years as a resource for solid waste research and education.

For 25 years, EREF's mission has remained the same: to advance research and education initiatives for sustainable solid waste management practices to benefit the waste industry and communities it serves.

From the beginning, members of the industry recognized the value of EREF's mission, with donations exceeding expectations in the first year of its existence. Thanks to the industry's continued support over the past 25 years, EREF has become one of the largest sources of funding for solid waste research in North America and has seen substantial growth.

"I have been fortunate to personally witness EREF's growth and contribute to the expansion of EREF's mission from multiple perspectives: as a scholar, as the Vice President of Environmental Programs and, for the past 8 years, as the President and CEO," said Bryan Staley. "While the organization has transformed since it was created, the ultimate goal is still to improve the industry and the environment. I am excited to see what the next 25 years have in store."
